Published by the Romanian Academy, this journal was founded in 1956 – reason why it still bears as title the original, Romanian name, followed by its English version. Yet, since 2007 it has become fully international, publishing academic articles in international languages only.

REF/JEF is ISI–Thomson-Reuters/Clarivate acknowledged, and indexed in many venues (such as Arts and Humanities/Web of Knowledge).

Worldwide colleagues are invited to contribute to the REF/JEF by submitting fully-developed academic essays, and/or book reviews that pertain to cultural studies or to other related/cognate disciplines that have the traditional or vernacular cultures at their core.

There are no payable fees for authors to publish with this periodical, thus only contributions of honorable and high academic standards are accepted; this, based on a severe peer-reviewing principle and recommendation.

The journal’s editorial board is not responsible for any of the ideological and/or political side-takings, stances or overtones that may surface, voluntarily or involuntarily, from authors.

Given the high number of submissions, only eligible and publishable texts will be granted an answer and cooperating support.

In today’s age, tented by dysfunctional intellectualism and IA’s corruptible invasion, our prospective collaborators are urged neither to share their authorship with ghost co-authors or managing middlemen, nor to adjust their papers with the irresponsible help of AI softs or bots, by relying on noncritical, automatic production of infos (such as bibliographies that were not personally read and properly analyzed). Fake, pretended or shallow scientific data or statistics compromise entire research studies and get dismissed. Whereas articles sent by emails with no humane-composed text, of doubtful signatures or authors, perhaps mediated by political or commercial agents, will be ignored. Empty or propagandist statements, as well as disclaimer formulas (which could have made some sense prior to the AI epoch) are nowadays obsolete, nonsensical, futile. Avoiding the automatic help of AI in humanities will still be a best solution for human, brainy authenticity.
